DRAKKENHEIM ENCOUNTERS, EXPANDED

DRAKKENHEIM IS A CURSED CITY. DANGER AND HORROR LURKS AROUND EVERY CORNER. THIS SUPPLEMENT ADDS ADDITIONAL random tables to help you create unique and novel random encounters that capture the essence of the cursed city. Here you'll find enhanced random tables for Outer City Locations, Inner City Locations, Warped Ruins Modifiers, Exploration Situations, Environmental Challenges, and Lucky Finds.

DESIGN GOALS

- ▶ Add more variety to the locations, descriptions, and loot for Random Encounters
- ▶ Add Exploration Situations that are open-ended with more opportunities for social interaction or RP, but could still have combat
- ▶ Add Environmental Challenges when you want a quick skill challenge that can drain PC resources but isn't a combat

ROLLING A RANDOM ENCOUNTER

Items marked with an asterisk * should be used unaltered from Dungeons of Drakkenheim. Otherwise, the tables are found below.

To generate a random encounter, follow these steps:

- ▶ Roll or pick a location from the Outer City or Inner City tables below
- ▶ Optional - Roll or pick a Warped Ruins Modifier or Arcane Anomaly to add additional ambience
- ▶ Roll or pick an Environmental Challenge, Exploration Situation, or a Combat Encounter
- ▶ Roll or pick a Lucky Find

ROLLING ENCOUNTERS IN ADVANCE (OPTIONAL)

Some DMs prefer to roll random encounters in advance as part of their session prep. The benefits of this approach:

- ▶ You can prepare any battlemaps necessary in advance
- ▶ You can review relevant monster statblocks in advance
- ▶ You can customize the monsters, location, or framing of the encounter to match PC backstories or plot points

If you want to prepare encounters in advance, you can follow these steps:

- ▶ Roll a couple of times on the random tables using the steps described above
- ▶ Take inspiration from the random results and pick and choose what seems interesting to create a new encounter.
- ▶ Create a list of around 6-10 of these pre-generated random encounters. Whenever the PCs trigger a random encounter, have the relevant PC roll a die and that determines the encounter from your list. Or, you pick one.
- ▶ Think of how the encounter can be integrated into what's happening in the story

INTEGRATING RANDOM ENCOUNTERS WITH THE STORY

Random encounters work best when they feel like they are a part of a living and dynamic world and when they are relevant to the story. Here's some ways to do that with your random encounters:

- ▶ Feature a faction the PCs haven't met yet as a way to introduce them
- ▶ Feature a faction the PCs have recently befriended as a way to build rapport
- ▶ Feature a faction the PCs have wronged previously to show consequences of PC actions & a dynamic world
- ▶ Foreshadow future monsters or threats the PCs might face (ex: Crimson Countess, Lord of the Feast)
- ▶ Use the encounter to introduce future plot hooks, such as having the PCs find clues or information
- ▶ Use the encounter to introduce future adventure sites, such as describing the Cathedral, Clocktower, or Castle Drakken as the backdrop of the encounter
- ▶ Pick monsters or threats that tie into the PCs backstories or personal quests

OUTER CITY LOCATIONS

These Outer City Locations replace the Common Locations list from Page 71 of the Dungeons of Drakkenheim book and add additional variety. Use this list as inspiration when describing locations encountered while exploring the city.

d20 Description

- 1 Breakaway meteors demolished this area, leaving only broken cobblestones and toppled ruins riddled with small craters
- 2 A makeshift encampment. There's a canvas tent, sleeping bags, and a few improvised barricades or defences. Embers still burn in the campfire
- 3 A deserted alleyway filled with trash, access point to the sewers
- 4 A devastated street filled with broken wagons, abandoned vendor stalls, and bones
- 5 A cluster of ramshackle taverns
- 6 Seedy tenement buildings and rundown shacks
- 7 Several workshops surrounded by warehouses
- 8 Abandoned store, formerly a front for black-market smuggling. The upper story is collapsed, but the cellar has some illicit goods hidden away
- 9 Half-burned restaurant. The menu and prices are still readable. Skeletons slumped over the remains of their last meal
- 10 Busted-open sewer grate out of which burst bulging vines leaking a purple puss
- 11 Damaged and broken carts from vendors. The carts are covered in tiny holes where burning-hot droplets of meteoric iron burned through
- 12 Perfectly normal-looking sewer grates have been replaced with illusionary sewer grates that lead directly to the hungry sewer denizens below
- 13 A sentient house possessed by the soul of its former occupant
- 14 A block of mostly-burned slums. The cheaply made homes collapsed from the shockwave, trapping many inside on that cursed day
- 15 A block of two-story townhomes made of brick. Many still stand, though windows have shattered. The sturdiest look like they may have been occupied recently
- 16 A small shrine to a local saint. The statue is crooked and the face has been defaced with fresh blood
- 17 Several dilapidated workshops with collapsed roofs. Inside can be found many crates and barrels. Some may contain valuables
- 18 Open-air market with many carts and wagons arranged chaotically as residents tried to flee in those final moments
- 19 Abandoned docks where river traffic would stop to load and unload goods. Moored to one is the wreck of a half-rotted ship
- 20 A monument to a hero of Westemar, around which lie several burned skeletons of townsfolk who sought aid in their final moments

INNER CITY LOCATIONS

EXPLORATION SITUATIONS

These Exploration Situations can be used in addition to the Combat Encounters presented in the book. These situations are open-ended and don't necessarily involve combat. Use them to mix in some variety and upward beats as the PCs explore Drakkenheim.

These encounters are inspired by a Random Encounter doc created by u/stalington

d20	Encounter	Description
1	Unlikely Allies	The party is pursued by a monster they clearly cannot defeat, such as the Lord of the Feast or the Executioner. In their flight, they run into a group of former rivals or enemies. Can they make a hasty truce and work together to escape?
2	Delirium Mimic	A chunk of Delirium on a wall is actually a mimic with a toothy Delerium-filled grin.
3	The Well	A Delirium shard is fused to a stone brick at the bottom of a contaminated well. What's down there?
4	Madman	A gibbering madman holds a Delirium fragment. Will he hand it over, or shriek and draw monsters?
5	Third Party	Two groups of the PCs friends or enemies are locked in a desparate battle. Who'll the PCs pick?
6	Rival Miners	Rivals are mining a Delirium shard. Will the PCs attack, trade, help, ignore, or scare them off?
7	Left to Rot	Members of a faction are locked in a collapsed cellar and contaminated. Who locked them there, and will the party help or leave them to their fate?
8	Low Hanging Fruit	A delirium shard is fused into an upper branch of a large, ancient tree. The tree is not capable of defending itself, but its inhabitants are.
9	Lost Hound	A dog, completely uncontaminated, is found wandering around the ruins. It seems to be lost and looking for its owner.
10	Under the Bridge	The party spots the reflection of a large delirium shard beneath a bridge, but excavating it is difficult without knowing what lurks in the water below.
11	Bait	An open satchel overflowing with glowing delirium shards turns out to be a pile of glass shards surrounding a magically glowing rock, with very real ratlings nearby.
12	Abandoned Camp	Bedrolls, a recently doused fire, and abandoned supplies suggest someone left in a hurry. Who was it, what did they flee from, and what was left behind?
13	Sewer Snatch	One PC is seized by a tendril from a nearby sewer drain or hole in the street and dragged below.
14	Ratapult	A group of ratlings is assembling a siege engine with horrid eldritch ammunition. Where's it aiming?
15	Interrogation	The party overhears an intense interrogation session where people are trying to learn the location of a secret stash or passageway, with the captive about to give in.
16	Meat for Oleg	The party is called by a gruff voice named Oleg from a boarded-up butcher's shop who asks for 4 bodies with meat on them in exchange for information about Rumors, faction info, and delirium. After the bodies are delivered, a large malformed hand snatches them and Oleg keeps their promise.
17	The Bell Tolls	The party encounters a bell tower where someone inside tries to alert enemies by ringing the bell. The party has the options to stop the person, snipe them from a nearby roof, or flee/hide. Each toll of the bell attracts more enemies.
18	Dead Courier	The party finds a dead courier with a locked scroll case containing vital information. Will the PCs return the info or sell it to an opposing faction, and is whoever killed the courier still around?
19	Runaway Wagon	A heavy wagon laden with valuable supplies barrels down the hill, chased by faction members shouting for the PCs to stop the wagon.
20	Secret Message	The party spots an academy mage and his powerful elemental guards writing a secret message on the wall of some ruins. The message details the time and location for a clandestine meeting, in which the academy will trade a powerful magic item for some delirium from the Queen's men.

ENVIRONMENTAL CHALLENGES

You can use these Environmental Challenges as skill challenges in place of a combat encounter or exploration situation. You can use these challenges to mix things up, or when you don't want to slow down the pace with combat but still want to drain resources.

RUNNING THE CHALLENGE

- Describe the environmental challenge. Think of it like an evocative and noteworthy scene or vignette. Take your time and describe the situation
- Ask each PC to describe what they will attempt. PCs can use their creativity, skills, tools, spells, class features, items, or equipment to try and overcome the challenge. Encourage them to narrate what their PC does instead of simply saying "I roll acrobatics to dodge." If appropriate, ask the PC to make a relevant skill check, tool check, ability check, or saving throw.
- Set the DC. The challenge will list suggested DCs. If the character expends a limited resource you may choose to simply grant them a success
- Determine Outcomes. Count the number of successes and failures. If the PC succeeds by 5 or more count it as two successes. Challenges will indicate suggested effects based on number of successes and failures. Both success & failure outcomes are possible for mixed success.
- Narrate Outcome. Weave the PCs actions and consequences into a narrative of what happens

SETTING DCs

Suggested DCs are listed as Easy DC 10/12/14 +2 Hard DC, indicating the DC guideline for an easy check in the Outer City/Inner City/ Castle or Crater, and the modifier to add for a hard check.

EFFECTS

TIME

The party spends a minimum of 1 hour with the challenge. Remember to save for Contamination every hour in the Deep Haze as usual.

EXPERIENCE AND CHALLENGE

If you award XP, treat as a medium encounter.

MINOR OR MAJOR DAMAGE

Some challenges call for major or minor damage

Locations	Minor Damage	Major Damage
Outer City	5 (1d10)	11 (2d10)
Inner City	11 (2d10)	22 (4d10)
Crater, Castle Drakken	22 (4d10)	55 (10d10)

CONTAMINATION

Many environmental hazards involve a threat of Contamination. Affected PCs must succeed on a Constitution saving throw against the challenge's easy DC or gain a level of Contamination.

SEARCHING THE RUINS

The affected PCs have advantage/disadvantage on the next Searching the Ruins check they make

ENCOUNTER

The affected PCs have ADV/DIS on the next roll for a Random Encounter or simply face an encounter

INFORMATION

The PCs find useful information or a clue. This can be a Rumor or news about Factions or Personal Quests.

DELERIUM

The PCs find Delirium deposits as described in Finding Delirium Deposits (pg 68) with the number of successes based on how well they solved the challenge.

LUCKY FIND

MADNESS

The PC must make an INT save against the Easy DC or suffer the effects of Drakkenheim Madness (pg 223).

FRENZIED MONSTERS

Fully Contaminated monsters in Drakkenheim crit on a 19 or a 20 for the next 12 hours. Good luck!

ARCANE ANOMALY

An Arcane Anomaly (pg 225) is triggered.

EXAMPLE: RUNNING THE CONTAMINATED FLOODWATER CHALLENGE

In this section, let's walk through how to run one of these challenges. Let's say you want to run the Contaminated Floodwaters challenge (see below) when the characters roll a 1 on their random encounter check in the outer city while they wait for a short rest. This is based on an example I ran in my home game recently.

RUNNING THE SKILL CHALLENGE

DM: "As you hunker down in the ruins of a former tavern to take your short rest, you hear the distant sound of thunder, and feel droplets of rain begin to hit your face. You bundle up tightly trying to get some respite, but over the course of the next hour, the rain becomes relentless and turns into a flash flood. Looking up the street, you can see a floodwall of roiling water, filled with a slurry of thick, sickly Delerium mud rapidly approaching your location.."

DM: "What do you do?"

Fighter: "I immediately look around for high ground"

DM: "OK, give me a Survival check" (DC 12 because they are in the inner city and this activity isn't hard)

Fighter: "That's a 9..."

DM: (Counts 1 failure) "Here's what happens - you immediately spot a small hill of ruined debris and rubble and quickly run with your friends in that direction, but as you're running you're beginning to get bogged down in waist-deep water, and that floodwall is approaching fast..."

DM: "Warlock, what do you do?"

Warlock: "I cast fly on myself and zip over to the hill"

DM: (Counts that as an automatic success) "Great, you get there quickly and safely! As you approach, you can see that a horde of Dreghs had the same idea as you and are charging towards this same hill..."

DM: "Druid, what are you doing?"

Druid: "Well, I need to keep casting my Ritual spell that I had started while we were resting. Can Fighter carry me on their back while I try to cast the ritual?"

DM: "Sure thing, Fighter can you give me an Athletics check and Druid can you give me a Concentration check to see if you can keep focus?" (Sets the DC to $14=12+2$ because this seems like something hard to do)

Fighter: "That's a 13!" and Druid: "16"

DM: (Counts the fighter's roll as a failure against the skill challenge, but the Druid can keep casting the ritual)

"So Fighter, you valiantly carry Druid on your back as you slog through this mud, but you're getting jostled and beat up by all sorts of debris in this water as you race against the incoming flood. Druid, you're able to keep your focus thanks to your friend's help. But now the horde of Dreghs is racing up the hill as the water rises swiftly around you."

DM: Cleric, what are you going to do?"

Cleric: "I cast Spirit Guardians to strike down the charging Dreghs"

DM: (Counts that as an automatic success) "Awesome, the Dreghs clamor up the rubble hill as the water is raging all around you but your holy flames incinerate them, leaving you four alone on this small island."

{{descriptive,

OUTCOME

At this point, the characters have 2 successes and 2 failures, so they don't trigger the Group Failures or Group Successes section. But, the fighter did take a beating from the flood and will take 10 (for 2 instances of Minor Failure because they decided to carry the Druid) bludgeoning damage and need to make a DC 12 Constitution save because of the Contamination effect of the skill challenge.

The characters experienced a cinematic scene that helped set the mood while being resolved quickly and narratively. And, they took some damage and expended some resources at the same time to help you manage your Adventuring Day goals. Great! }}

BLANKETING FOG

Easy DC 10/15/17 +2 Hard DC

A dense fog rolls in and the party finds themselves unable to navigate their way through it. The fog seems to shift and change, leading the party in circles or causing them to become hopelessly lost. Rooms appear and disappear, doors lead to different places than they should, and even the layout of the building itself seems to change. Crumbling and twisting corridors appear and disappear, filled with strange whispers and eerie moans. Tendrils of flesh pierced through with jagged stone shards lash out and try to pull the party into the living walls.

EVIL TWIN

Easy DC 11/16/18 +2 Hard DC The Haze has manifested a tear in reality. You can see across the fractured multiverse into an infinite expanse of possibilities. Countless alternate versions of you stare back, but one in particular catches your attention...

d4 What do you See?

- 1 A twisted, contaminated version of you roars back at you and lashes out with dozens of mutated tentacles
- 2 A maniacal, grinning version of you stares back with rotting Octarine eyes and calls out "I can smell your blood, so fresh and clean!" as it tries to claw out your pristine eyeballs

Group Failures	3+ fails: Major Damage to the lowest roll instead of Minor Damage 4+ fails: The lowest roller loses an item of some importance into the sphere
Group Successes	None, you're lucky to be alive!

WARPED RUINS MODIFIERS

Many buildings in Drakkenheim are not exactly normal anymore. Use these and the Arcane Anomalies in Appendix D to inject weirdness and horror as characters explore the city. This list replaces the Warped Ruins table found on Page 71 of the Dungeons of Drakkenheim book with additional options to add more variety.

d20 Warped Ruins

- 1 Stonework and timbers have transformed into solid glass
- 2 Cloaked in eldritch fire, but it's not burning down
- 3 Flesh, limbs, eyes, mouths, and faces are merged into the walls. They babble incoherently
- 4 The side facing the crater is melted away like sticky wax
- 5 Disembodied screams and whispers resound from within
- 6 All colour within becomes black and white
- 7 An illusion of a childhood memory briefly appears in the front door, then vanishes
- 8 Looking at the building causes déjà vu
- 9 Scorch marks in the shape of human silhouettes are found on the walls and floors
- 10 Bodies have been turned to semi-transparent, pale, purple glass. If you touch it, it explodes into a fine purple powder
- 11 Shadows shift and weave, as if there were two different suns in the sky
- 12 Street signs move and shift paradoxically
- 13 Eyes on purple slug-like eyestalks pop out of the walls and floors and follow you around
- 14 Walls that sob and constantly seep blood
- 15 A pool of semi-transparent delirium sludge that pulses with a heartbeat
- 16 A decapitated head whose shrivelled eyes follow you around wherever you move

THE CRATER

The Crater is the should be the strangest location in all of Drakkenheim. Use these tables to bring it to life.

CRATER DESCRIPTIONS

d12	Description
1	The ground shifts, writhes, and contors beneath your feet. Reality is unravelling before your very eyes...
2	Blanketing & creeping moss with fleshy membranes and blood vessel roots pulses with sickening energy.
3	The air is thick with a sickly haze that clings to your skin and fills your lungs. The deeper you move into the crater, the thicker the haze becomes, and your vision blurs.
4	Time and space feel twisted and strange. You see brief flashes of alternate realities and timelines and your senses seem to deceive you. One moment the air is damp and cool, the next blistering hot or freezing cold.
5	A building that seems to be growing out of the ground, the walls twisted and warped in impossible ways. Windows and doors appear and disappear at random, and the inside of the building is filled with twisting corridors and rooms that defy all logic.
6	A pool of sludge that seems to be alive, pulsating and writhing with a sickening energy. As the PCs approach, they see that the sludge is filled with strange, twisted creatures that writhe and squirm in the thick liquid.
7	A cluster of delerium fragments that have grown into the shape of a twisted, skeletal hand. As the PCs approach, they feel a sense of dread wash over them, as if the hand is reaching out to grab them and drag them into the abyss.
8	A tree that seems to be made entirely out of twisted, gnarled Delerium crystals. The branches and leaves are sharp and jagged, and the tree seems to pulse with a malevolent energy. As the PCs approach, they hear whispers in the wind that seem to be coming from the tree itself.
9	A twisted, eldritch statue made entirely of Delerium crystals. The statue seems to depict some kind of monstrous deity, its twisted features seeming to shift and contort as you look at it.
10	A pool of bright red blood that seems to be alive, its surface rippling and shifting as if it were a living creature. As the PCs approach, they see strange shapes moving beneath the surface, as if something is swimming just below the water.
11	A twisted, maddening maze of rubble, flesh, and bone. The walls and floors seem to shift and contort as the PCs move through the maze, making it difficult to keep track of where they've been and where they're going.
12	A writhing mound of sludge and flesh that has gathered around a broken Delerium crystal containing twisted forms pulsating with a sickening energy. As the PCs watch, the substance merges together into a single, giant creature that seems to be made entirely of writhing mouths and tendrils.

CRATER ENVIRONMENTAL HAZARDS

2-3	Blanketing Fog
